Woman's Department.

wife doesn't need something new about the house?

Or at house-cleaning time, do you ever stop to think that perhaps some room needs a new earpet, or to be newly painted? Do you inquire into the condition of her ward-robe, and hand her out ten or fifteen dollars to replenish it? And get along without that full-blooded so-and-so? Or had you rather take all the farm produce, or the profits, from it, to carry out your pet plans, with-out-regard to the pleasure or comfort of the others members of the family? If you do this, do you realize what you are doing? Listen a moment! You are slowly but surely crushing the courage and hope out of a patient heart. You are in danger of killing out that love which has been so fully bestowed upon you in years past. In some few cases it is thoughtlessness, and in others it is inborn selfishness. Such a man has not any right to ask any woman to be his wife.

It may be that fruit growers are drawing conclusions too quickly in regard to the efficacy of spraying as a protection against insects and fungi. People are writing and talking as though it was settled that the control of these obstacles to our success is easily within our reach, and that the course casily within our reach, and that the course of procedure to evade these destructive effects is as plain and easy as the planting and pruning of spring time. A careful student of these methods recently stated to der that he last year tried the Bordeaux for the state of the stat mixture on his field of potatoes, and never debefore in any year lost so large a part by rot. He also sprayed his apple trees with the the London purple, and one tree in partic- it the London purple, and one tree in partie-ular, standing alone, was noted as a test, and was given two applications. One of the great wants among the farmers n our State is a larger business on the farm. in our State is a larger business on the farm. There need be little distinction in the application of this claim on account of the kind of farming a man is engaged in as a special line of work. A little income is not enough for the times in which we are living. We all want more, and the way to get it is to do more business. This holds true whether our work is growing strawberries raising one of the control o our work is growing strawberries, raising pay hay for the market, keeping a dairy, making beef or breeding horses. Nowhere is it this more called for than with a stock husbandry.

If a farmer wishes to increase the number of his stock he must increase his fodder telli crops for feeding them. One of the most feasible plans for doing this is to raise corn for the alle. Such is the amount of corn rea that can be grown to the acre that there is hardly any limit to what a man can do in ing this direction. If he wants to keep more stock, then he has only to change another our field from grass to corn, and he will have age.

Corn is one of the most reliable crops grown. With the present methods of doing the work the cost of the crop is much less stythan was formula because Corn is now here. than was formerly the case. Corn is now grown by many farmers in this State at a visit labor cost of men and teams of ten to twelve to be dollars an acre. This makes it possible for work a farmer to handle many acres if be wants will

Through the experience of those who have grown corn for the silo, aided by the work of the experiment stations, the methods and practices called for to secure the best results. the best results are now well established, as a and there is no need that an intelligent man abould make blunders or fail of a complete abould make blunders or fail of a complete of the fodder is a more important factor about than mere bulk. than mere bulk. Hence the best practice how recommends that a kind of corn be selected and so planted as to give a large and perfect development of ears with the stalks. Every one knows that corn with well perfected ears attached, is a better fodder than stalks without these ears. It is lust as much better in the silo, as when fed from the field. Hence, instead of the couthern and Western varieties of corn hat formerly were planted for fodder corn, a variety that will perfect a growth of ears should be selected. Any of our strong growing varieties which have been pro-
